

ELSTNER SNORTS AGAIN.

Carson City March 8th, 1895.

ED. APPEAL: This morning under the head of "Saint Cleveland" you gave two reasons for giving my communication of the day before a place in the APPEAL. The first one testified to a manly courage that was creditable. The second was uncharitable as it was for purposes of exposing my "mental obliquity." Still the phrase of uncharitableness was excusable as you appear to have been absent minded while writing, for you immediately proceed to credit me with a firmness that prohibits devotion from old time Democracy. Then you hasten to upset all by attributing my firmness to cobwebs woven across my brain. But enough of these innocent and amusing contradictions.

You say that my statement that Americans would not take bonds is not true. You must have written hurriedly and carelessly. If you will re-read what I did say, you will learn that New York bankers were anxious to obtain bonds providing that they could obtain them in their own way, which was to take bonds from the Treasury to day and gold from them tomorrow. By such dealing the Treasurer would be issuing bonds until the bankers could force him to suspend specie payment and throw the credit of the country where he found it on March 4th, 1893.

You are aware of course that the bankers began a run on the Treasury about the middle of January, and kept it constantly moving until about the middle of February, when about forty million dollars had been withdrawn. The old miser Russell Sage, expecting the run would be successful, in which case gold would be at a high premium, drew out over half a million of gold to make a little pocket change, when the scheme of the bankers had reached the objectionable point. But that General of finances, Carlisle, blockaded the game by going into the market and buying gold by the issue of bonds. It is very fortunate for the country that it has a Treasurer that cannot be caught napping, but one who is at all times active and earnest in performing his important duties ably.

You say that I can see no wrong in Cleveland, even should he become a dynamiter. As long as he adheres closely and faithfully to the principles of Democracy, as he has, and continues to exert his efforts for the fulfillment of the promises made in that grand Democratic platform at Chicago in 1892. I will remain an ardent admirer, and when he violates the principles of Democracy, and the promises made in that platform, my admiration will cease.

M. R. ELSTNER.

FILIBUSTERING MINORITY.

Yesterday Mr. Gorman arose and roasted the filibustering minority who were wasting valuable time and obstructing business by motions only intended to delay action and waste time. He said he was tired of seeing the newspapers abusing the men who voted for a 60-day session, while they patted the men on the back who were opposing a sixty-day session and posing as economists. He said the men who were anxious to cut the session short hoping to be praised as economists, were the very men who had made a long session a necessity and he thought the public should know just where to place the blame. The language of Mr. Gorman is appropriate to the situation as it now stands, and the APPEAL proposes to let the public know where the real blame belongs of extending the session at an expense of thousands of dollars of the people's money.

The extended session is due solely and absolutely to the men who have tried to make a kindergarten exhibition of the Legislature and some of them have done so with the deliberate intent of extending the session that they may cast the blame on the Silver party. The job has been apparent for the last few weeks, and when the facts are known to the people, they will know exactly where to place the blame.

If these men think the public are a lot of suckers their minds will be disabused of the idea in very short order.

The APPEAL congratulates the Populist party of Nevada, in the accession to its ranks of the Honorable Sardin Summerfield, late Republican Senator from Washoe. When the APPEAL last Fall, told the voters of Nevada that Mr. Summerfield was a Populist, and was working the wires behind Doughty, his brother-in-law, its statement was discredited. It was evident however, by his support of the income tax bill, that he is heart and soul with the most radical plank in the Omaha platform. It was rumored last evening that Hogan of Washoe, ordered tar barrels burned in Reno, over the fact that one sinner had repented, but the report was not authenticated at the hour of going to press.

The allusion to Allen Braggs misfortune in having been struck by apoplexy in the Reno Journal was a cowardly piece of work by an anonymous writer who signed himself X. It is a surprise to the APPEAL that Mr. Kelly, who is usually a very careful editor, should have allowed such a thing to step past him.

It is an extraordinary proposition that a Nevada Legislature has to spend two hours of debate to decide on endorsing a bi-metallist for President, but it was done in the Legislature yesterday.
